About the Author

Brenda Dempsey is an award-winning entrepreneur, international bestselling author, philanthropist, and publisher. She is the CEO of Book Brilliance Publishing.

Book Synopsis

Publisher and Anthologist Brenda Dempsey brings together 45 Voices to share their true stories of resilience, positivity and hope from a pandemic.

Sharing their experiences of surviving through a pandemic, and other stressful situations life throws at us, the 45 Voices come from all walks of life - from doctors and nurses, to parents and business owners - raising their voices and sharing their real-life inspirational stories, to show their bouncebackability and resilience.

Each of the contributors are New-Found Heroes in their own way, baring their souls and finding the courage to allow themselves to be vulnerable, in a pandemic that in many ways unites us.

All profits of Resilient Voices will be donated to the NHS in gratitude for their commitment, dedication and going beyond the duty of their role to support, help and protect lives.

About the Author:

Brenda Dempsey is an award-winning entrepreneur, anthologist, philanthropist, international bestselling author, master coach, and woman of influence.

Since June 2020, she has been the CEO of Book Brilliance Publishing. Having a prominent and highly successful career behind her as an educator, Brenda is passionate about writing and publishing and putting authors at the heart of business growth to reach high levels of success.

Key Sales Points:

- On the day of the book's Kindle launch on 5th July 2021, the NHS's 73rd birthday, Resilient Voices was #1 in multiple categories on Amazon UK.
- All profits of Resilient Voices will be donated to the NHS Charities Together, in gratitude for the NHS's commitment, dedication and going beyond the duty of their role to support, help and protect lives.
- Brenda Dempsey is an international bestselling author of two previous anthologies, Voices of Courage and Voices of Hope.
- The idea of putting together an anthology to raise funds for the NHS came to Brenda on New Year's Eve 2020, when she was reflecting of the year she had witnessed unfolding on the news, and wondering how she could help.
- Some of the collaborators have shared their voice via poetry or photography.

"Resilient Voices is a new anthology of commentary about the 14 months of living in a pandemic situation with the threat of Covid-19 at the door. ... If you're looking for a publication that shows you the other side of the pandemic, then this is the work for you."

PRESS RELEASE – for immediate release

Brenda Dempsey

Publisher rallies Resilient Voices to raise funds for the NHS

Brenda Dempsey, MD of Book Brilliance Publishing, has collaborated with 45 co-authors to raise funds for the NHS, by sharing their stories of resilience, positivity and hope from a pandemic.

Originally from Clydebank, Scotland, but now living in Epsom, Surrey, Brenda spent New Year's Eve reflecting on the events of 2020, as she witnessed unfolding on the news. She was compelled to take action and give back to the NHS.

As she is a publisher, international bestselling author of two previous anthologies (Voices of Courage and Voices of Hope) and a leader, Brenda knew an anthology was the way to encourage and support others, while also raising funds for a charitable cause.

With the assistance of her team members, Olivia Eisinger and Zara Thatcher, Brenda has compiled Resilient Voices, an anthology of 45 individuals, or 'Voices', from all walks of life all over the world – from doctors and nurses, poets and academics, to parents and business owners.

The collaborators were specially chosen to share their experiences of surviving through a pandemic and other stressful situations life has thrown at all of us. Each contributor raises their voice and shares their real-life inspirational story, showing their bouncebackability and resilience. Some of the contributors have shared their voice via poetry and images.

Resilient Voices will be launched as a Kindle on 5th July, the 73rd birthday of the NHS. All profits raised will be donated to NHS Charities Together, a national charity who care for the NHS, to say thank you for their commitment, dedication and going beyond the duty of their role to support, help, and protect lives.

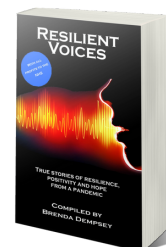

Brenda says, "I love bringing people together, encouraging them to raise their voice and share their stories, so what better way than to collect stories from amazing people."

"Each of the contributors are New-Found Heroes in their own way, baring their souls and finding the courage to allow themselves to be vulnerable, in a pandemic that in many ways unites us."

Resilient Voices has been compiled in Book Brilliance Publishing's first year of business. The publishing house was formed in June 2020, to help authors make a difference and grow a profitable business around their book.
